Dodd Scores State Dept. On Policy as to Ghana

United Press International

Vice Chairman Thomas J. Dodd of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee said yesterday that he has asked the group to determine what role "misleading evaluations" have played in U. S. policy toward Ghana. Dodd said, including one which said Ghana engages in "steadily increasing ties of friendship with the United States." The documents were purchased "several weeks ago," Dodd said.

The Connecticut Democrat, who has called Ghana "the first Soviet satellite in Africa," said the State Department has recently given stern warnings to Ghana and "is at last beginning to face up to facts which it has heretofore refused to face up to."

But he accused the Department of "gross misrepresentation" in its published documents on Ghana, and asked the subcommittee to find out who was responsible.

Dodd also released a subcommittee report on testimony from Ghanaian students opposing U. S. aid to the government of President Kwame Nkrumah.

Dodd took particular issue with State Department "fact
